INFORMATION ON THE FUNCTION OF THE QUALIFICATION

Access to further study

This qualification gives access to Doctoral studies, provided that the student had completed a minimum of 300 ECTS credits in the overall teachings of Bachelor and Master.

Stated objectives associated with the qualification and professional status (if applicable)

The main goal of this Master is to provide students an advanced training level regarding professional profiles in the realm of social intervention psychology. They are expected to acquire a wide knowledge of the field and get to master research and intervention skills, methods and techniques relative to social and community action. Furthermore, this degree will help them to develop an ability to critically assess the methodological quality of research in social and community intervention psychology, as well as the ability to analyse and assess the advances of social intervention and, if necessary, to redefine intervention goals based on the information obtained.

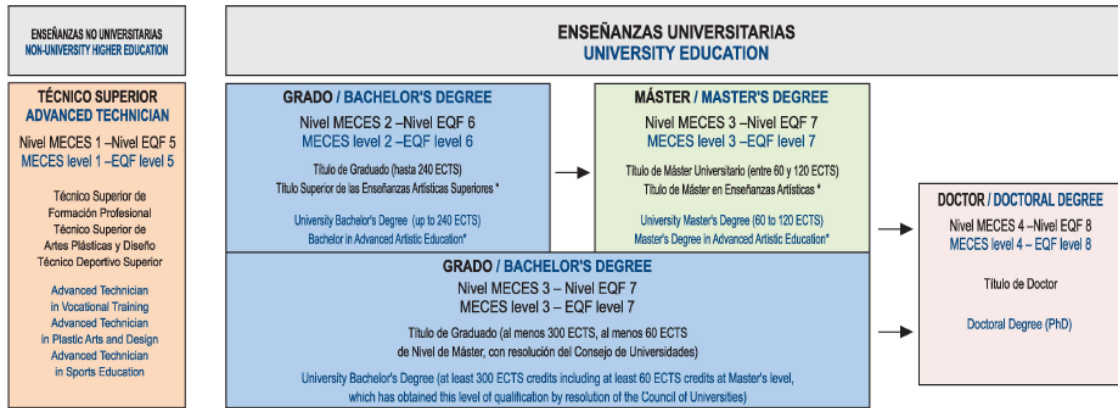

After studying this Master, students should be able to: apply social psychological models and techniques to the assessment of social needs, in order to implement suitable intervention programs; have an advanced knowledge of intervention techniques and strategies based on social and community intervention psychology; make evidence-based critical decisions regarding interpretation of results derived from intervention; and display interpersonal skills for cross-disciplinary and cross-cultural team-work in the domain of social intervention psychology.
